

Growsome Chinese Superstition.
A belief exists among the Chinese that if a father or mother be seriously ill, the most effective way of curing them is for one of their children to cut a tiny piece of flesh out of his own arm or leg and administer broth made of the flesh in question to the suffering parent.

Escape the "Stout" Class

An attractive figure is not a matter of size but of correct proportions. The stout women who are never spoken of as "stout" are those who give a little time and thought to proper corseting. Rengo Belt Reducing Corsets give the wearer an appearance of slenderness. The exclusive Rengo Belt feature gives strength and support where the greatest strain falls—over the abdomen and hips. They have the reputation of being "the most economical reducing corsets ever devised."

MUSIC COURSE IN THE PARIS SCHOOLS.

The music course in the Public School system of Paris, is designed primarily to create or to cultivate in every pupil enrolled, a sincere love for music.

In the formative period of the child's life, music leads into many interesting channels—nature-study, nationalities, geography, folk-lore, etc., and it stimulates the imagination, develops the dramatic instinct, trains accurately the ear and eye, fosters religion and patriotism, and, in short, makes more vital the world in which he moves.

The Hollis Dann Music Course is used throughout the grades. This course has been found by some of the strongest school systems in the U. S. to surpass all others, in content, and in psychologic treatment of the subject. Cincinnati and New Orleans, both distinctively musical cities have recently adopted this course.

The present supervisor of music has studied for two years with Dr. Dann, who, until recently, was the head of the department of music at Cornell University.

Dr. Dann on September 1, of this year assumed the duties of Director of Music of the State of Pennsylvania.

The music program in the First and Second grades, consists of matching tones, oral and written (black board) dictation, rhythm drills, rote songs, dramatization, and individual singing.

The third year's work plans for the development of a stronger sense of rhythm, recognition of note-values and rests, accurate sense of pitch and tone-quality, and correctness in sight reading.

Music Writing Book No. 1 is introduced in the Fourth grade. This book fills the need in the education of the child, to make definite that knowledge which he is taught to express orally. In the monthly lists, and semester examinations the written work in the writing books, is included in the marks given on the report cards. The pupils in the fourth year are taught the rudiments of two-part singing, more complicated metric problems, chromatics, the minor scale and the making of original melodies.

The fifth and sixth years are devoted to more intricate tonal and metric studies, differentiation of scales, three part singing, memorization and biographical knowledge of some composers.

The scale taken up in the Junior High School, is that of scale building and intervals. These points are developed both through oral and written lessons. Music appreciation is made a vital part of the course here. Composers are discussed, and instruments, voices and compositions are classified. The Victrola and Pathe machines and the records in the School Music Library are used in the appreciation classes.

Music is elective in the High School, with the exception of the Freshman class, which has periods for chorus work.

The number of students availing themselves of this course is large. Elementary Theory of Music is studied, in addition to sight-reading, dictation, study of rhythms, melody-making and appreciation.

A recent test, covering all grades in the school, disclosed the fact the number of monotonous was remarkably small. This condition places Paris in the enviable list of those cities which are truly musical.

Paris has always had good musicians, and the art will certainly grow to splendid proportions if the standards of the Public Schools, private teachers and Music Department of the Women's Clubs are maintained.
